At the age of 17 she debuted with the Kannada film 'Mahakavi Kalidasa' which at once brought her name & fame.

She became an icon in Karnataka by her role of 'Kitturu Rani Chennamma' in 1962. This film won National Award. By that time she had already acted in Tamil & Telugu films. In Tamil she is known as 'Kannadathu Paingkili' (Kannada's Parrot).

She acted opposite top stalwarts like Honnappa Bhagavathar, Dr. Rajkumar , Kalyan Kumar, Uday Kumar, Gemini Ganeshan, M G R, Sivaji Ganeshan, N T R, Akkineni Nageshwara Rao, Dilip Kumar, Shammi Kapoor & Bharat Bhushan.

She has served as Chairperson of the Karnataka Film Development Corporation as also Chairperson of Kanteerava Studios, Bangalore. She has engaged herself in social services & philanthropic activities and has instituted endowments and awards in memory of her late husband Sri Harsha.

Anjali Devi

Anjali Devi (born 24 August 1927) is a veteran Telugu actress and producer. She is well known for her mythological role as Sita in Lava Kusha and roles in movies like Suvarna Sundari and Anarkali.

She hails from Peddapuram, East Godavari district in Andhra Pradesh and later settled in Chennai. She was a drama artiste before entering into movies. Her debut was as Lohitashva in Raja Harishchandra in 1936. Her first movie as heroine was Kashtajeevi by L.V. Prasad. She later acted in more than 350 Telugu movies and in a few Tamil and Kannada films as heroine.

She married P. Adinarayana Rao, a music director, in 1948. She, along with him, produced many Telugu films under the banner of Anjali Pictures. She acted in Lava Kusha, a milestone film and the first colour film in Telugu film industry in 1963. She acted in various roles like damsel, angel, dancer, demon, goddess, traditional woman and later as mother. Her granddaughter Saila Rao is also an actress.

have the knack of making the puppets to suit the characters in a story, but have an idea of the mythology or epics underlying them. They must be aware of the values which are sought to be displayed through puppetry, besides penning the dialogue and music that accompany the presentation. Hence, it is a confluence of various facets of art, the learned judge added.

Referring to a brief interaction she had with the puppet artists, she said” I was informed that there is not much support from the government agencies or others for the artists. It is high time that the state as also the corporate sectors and other patrons of art lent their support and encourage the puppet artists so that the tradition can be kept alive and greater innovation can be brought about in this field.

“Once again, I thank the organization for inviting me to this puppet display,” she concluded. ●

“One who does not know what meditation is, is like a blind man in a world of bright colour, shadows and moving light”, averred Sri Kabir Jaithirtha, Director, Rajghat Besant School, Varanasi. He was speaking for the Bhavan’s R. Nagaraja Rao Endowment lecture on May 12.

Basing his talk on the subject “Meditation in the light of Jiddu Krishnamurti’s Teachings”, Sri Jaithirtha explained that a meditative mind is silent, not the silence of thought or that of a still evening when all images, words or perceptions have ceased. Rather, this meditative mind is religious, religion that has not touched the temple, church or any chants. The religious mind, he said, is an explosion of love, love that knows no separation.

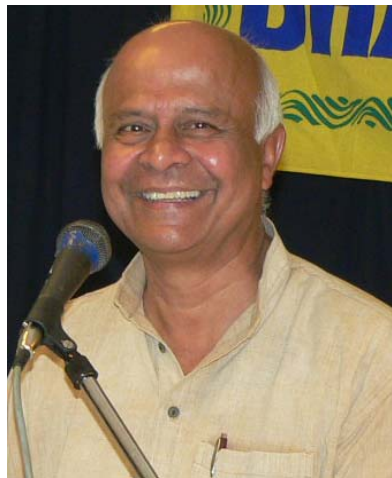

To elucidate further, Sri Jaithirtha explained that the word meditation had great attraction to the human being who tries different approaches to practice it. It is an attempt to somehow prepare the brain to practice concentration. It is an experience, a beautiful one at that, he added.

Yet he asserted that meditation was hard work, demanding the highest form of discipline, not conformity, not imitation, not obedience, but a discipline that comes from constant awareness.

The talk was followed by a question-answer session which evoked considerable interest.
